

Autism Awareness Night with the Rockford IceHogs Featured a Song from TAP's Social Skills Group and Much More.

Feb 02, 2024

On January 20, the Rockford IceHogs hosted its 13th Annual Autism Awareness Night at BMO Harris Bank Center with 50 percent of the ticket proceeds going to our Autism Program at Easterseals (TAP). The night was a great success with 5,500 fans in attendance, a song from the TAP social skills group, a TAP information table at the event, and so much more. See videos, news coverage, and photos from the event.

On January 20, the Rockford IceHogs hosted its 13th Annual Autism Awareness Night at BMO Harris Bank Center with 50 percent of the ticket proceeds going to our Autism Program at Easterseals (TAP). Proceeds will be applied to autism diagnostics and our social skills groups.

Highlights

- In advance of the event, Program Manager Lori Davie spoke with WIFR 23 News about why autism awareness is so important. Watch now.
- WIFR 23 also covered the special relationship between Assistant Coach Jared Nightingale and Lori Davie's daughter, Emily, who has an autism spectrum disorder. Watch now.
- Our TAP Autism Skills Social Group also had the honor of singing at the event. See the video below.

Click here to view video

- The evening was a great success with 5,500 fans attending and included an information table from TAP. Check out the photos below from IceHogs/Todd Richter.