On March 16 and 17, two young people who receive services from Easterseals Serving Chicagoland and Greater Rockford (ECR) dropped the puck for the Chicago Wolves.

On March 16, Austin, who receives services ECR was excited to drop the puck at the Wolves' game against the Manitoba Moose. He is 18 years old from Cortland, IL and attends Clare Wood Academy in Wheaton, IL. Austin loves hockey and plays for the Chicago Storm Special Hockey. He is a HUGE Wolves fan and can answer many facts about his favorite team.

Austin received his diagnosis in 2007. Since then, his father says that he has overcome many obstacles, works hard in school every day, and recently received straight As. "Austin has received services from Easterseals as part of his journey and continues to strive toward his goals. He makes his family and friends very proud of him every day," says his dad.

Michael, a student at Easterseals Academy Tinley Park, dropped the puck on March 17. Michael is a 10 years old who enjoys the outdoors, listening to music, being around people, animated things, and being the center of attention. As his mom says, "He is always ready for some action and greatly appreciated this opportunity!"
